MADRID (Agencies) - Iraqi Culture and Information Minister Latif Nassif Al Jassem said in an interview published Sanarday his country was furious with British leader Margaret Thatcher's role in the Gulf crisis. We are furious with the British position. We believe Thatcher is pushing U.S. President George Bush to take drastic decisions," he told Spain's Diario 16 newspaper. Britain was the first European country to back the U.S. deployment to the Gulf following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. Thatcher said she would welcome Soviet involvement in the multinational force in the Gulf. U.S. officials in Helsinki for the superpower summit said Washington would press Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to play a more active role in the Gulf crisis. President George Bush has played down suggestions he would ask for Soviet troops to be sent. Thatcher, visiting Scotland, said the Soviet Union had sent warships to the Gulf before, during the Iran-Iraq war. "I think if Mr. Gorbachev would be prepared to send something, it would be good," she told reporters. About 800 people marched peacefully past the United States embassy in London to protest against the U.S. military presence in the Gulf

SANA'A (AP) — The former president of Yemen, Abdullah Al Salah, led a demonstration at the Soviet embassy Saturday demanding that the Soviet Union take a more prominent role in resolving the Gulf crisis. The demonstration of several hundred people was held the day before Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was to meet in Helsinki with U.S. President George Bush. "The Soviets have been the traditional friend of the Arabs. We ask you to translate this into a practical solution" for the Gulf crisis, said Al Salah in a speech outside the embassy. ### Superpowers pledge cooperation in Gulf

Combined agency dispatches

HELSINKI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and U.S. President George Bush arrived in Helsinki Saturday for a hastily-arranged summit with both declaring they would work together to defuse the explosive Gulf

Bush, who was expected to press for a more active Soviet role, said Sunday's brief summit could help bring a new era of peace and security.

Gorbachev arrived several hours later and struck a similar theme in stressing the need for superpower cooperation.

The United States and Soviet Union had to make sure that the relations they had developed in the post-cold war era were not knocked off course by any event, he said. "I hope this will be an impor-

The two leaders' summit, their third in less than a year, comes as the West is moving more men and equipment into the Gulf to confront Iraqi forces in Kuwait.

Six more warships — two each from Australia, the Netherlands and Italy — joined the Western armada in the Gulf and seven more U.S. naval vessels passed through the Suez Canal towards Saudi Arabia.

Bush was buoyed by new backing from Arab states. Kuwait pledged $5 billion and Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates also agreed to help pay for the 100,000-strong U.S. force in Pressure mounted on Gorbachev to commit some of his forces. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said she would welcome such a move but Bush himself said he would not ask for Soviet troops.

NICOSIA (R) — Iraq said Saturday it would consider "null and void" any decision by Egypt, Sandi Arabia and its Gulf allies to move the Arab League headquarters from Tunis to Cairo.

A foreign ministry spokesman accused Egypt of pursuing a "destructive role to tear apart" the Arab League by calling for an emergency meeting of Arab fore-ign ministers in Cairo next Monday to agree on the move.

Iraq says direct airlift allowed from Kuwait

Combined agency despatches

NICOSIA - Iraq has no reason to reject any requests by western governments to fly women and children out of Kuwait as the United States and Canada have done, Information Director Naji Al Hadithi said Saturday.

Using chartered Iraqi planes, the United States on Friday started an airlift to Baghdad of dependants stranded in Kuwait since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of the emirate. The men are being kept back as a deterrant against attack on Iraq.

The first plane stopped off in Baghdad to complete Iraqi exit formalities before carrying some 170 Americans to Amman. Hadithi confirmed a Washington report that a second plane was due to fly more Americans out of Kuwait to Amman via Baghdad

Canada organised a similar airlift on Thursday, ferrying women and children from Kuwait to Baghdad and then on to Ankara. Asked if other Western governments could organise similar ners stranded in Baghdad and airlifts, Hadithi said by telephone from Baghdad that all could leave Kuwait by air or bus since President Saddam Hussein decided that Western women and children were free to leave. "It is up to the embassies concerned" to organise the evacuation, he said.

"It is a commercial question. If a request is made to Iraqi Airways, there is no reason why it should be rejected," he said. West European governments have so far organised bus convoys to take their dependants from

Iraq denies linking food and evacuation India appeals to summit

By P.V. Vivekanand Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — Indian Prime Minister V.P. Singh is appealing to U.S. President George Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to allow food and medicine to be sent to Iraq in return for direct evacuation of Asians from Kuwait, diplomatic sources

"Singh is sending a message to the two leaders at their summit in Helsinki (on Sunday) that India, which has over 150,000 of its nationals stranded in Kuwait, has a right to feed its citizens," said the diplomatic source...

The source, who spoke to the Jordan Times on condition of anonymity, said New Delhi was told by "the Americans and Europeans" that there was no need for any dispatch of food to Iraq but the Indian government retorted that "information available to it was to the contrary, and that it cannot allow its nationals to starve in Kuwait.'

The Indian position is based on the argument that "international sanctions can never be used to starve a people, no matter what the circumstances, and this will be made clear in Singh's message to the superpowers," according to Reports in India have indicated that United Nations officials had told the government that they are not in a position to rule that food and medicine were exempted from the Security Council-imposed sanctions against Iraq. According to the source, the Americans have taken a strong stand against India sending any food to Kuwait and indicated that the repercussions could be heavy. Iraq Saturday denied that it had attached a precondition that any direct airlift of Indians from Kuwait or Iraq would be in return for supply of food and medicine. But the source said in addition to direct airlifts, Baghdad had also informed New Delhi that any sealift from Iraqi or Kuwaiti ports as well as Iraqi permission for Indians to cross the border into Iran to be ferried from an Iranian port were conditional on dispatch of food.

According to other sources, shortage of food is slowly becoming acute in Kuwait, particularly in light of the declared Iraqi policy that its army will be given priority in food supplies before its own citizens and expatriates.

India has "ships carrying foodstuffs standing by key any time it gets the green signal from the U.N. or the U.S.," according to the source.

Iraqi Information Director Naji Al Hadithi was quoted on Sunday as saying that "there are no preconditions, we have given India permission for their planes and ships to evacuate those nationals Indian Foreign Minister In-

Queen Noor visits Ruweished

The Queen toured the camp shaking hands with the evacuees and assuring them, "we are doing everything possible to get you Queen Noor was surrounded by brown-skinned Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Indian men and women shouting: "Please help us. We have no food, no water, you are our only hope.' One mother shoved her baby in front of the Queen, sobbing: You are a mother, my child is dying, please help us."

The Queen, who was accompa-

Queen kept saying to the throngs pressing around. "We are doing our utmost to find a way to send you home...

Second convoy with aid for Iraqi children leaves Amman

By Ali Masarwah Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN — Twenty 40-tonne trucks carrying milk, medicines and foodstuffs for the children of Iraq were seen off by hundreds of people, most of them women and children, at the Seventh Circle area Saturday afternoon.

The convoy, carrying a total of 320 tonnes of commodities for Iraq, was organised by the General Union of Voluntary Societies (GUVS) which had issued a nationwide appeal for the donation of milk for the children of Iraq two weeks ago.

"We have received over JD 400,000 worth of donations, most of them from poor people, and the efforts are continuing in spite of Jordan's limited capabilites," GUVS chairman, Dr. Abdullah Al Khatib, told the Jordan Times.

Describing the nature of the donations as "a token gesture" of solidarity with the Iraqi people, Al Khatib said that "(these donations) carry a clear message to the whole world: to remind the leadership of the international community — namely Mrs. Thatcher and Mr. Bush — that the rights of children were declared 40 years ago, and therefore, Jordan will not accept a blockade which could lead to the starvation of more than 9 million Iraqi children."

According to officials from the voluntary societies, a large proportion of the donations were contributed by international organisations, such as the World Church Council. In addition to that, private persons, most of them hardly able to support themselves, had spared no effort to help the Iraqi people in overcoming the blockade enforced on Iraq by Western forces operating in "Seeing old men and women sacrificing a substantial part of their meagre pensions to support the struggle of the Iraqi people stengthens your belief in the greatness of the Arab Nation," a GUVS official said. Dr. Al Khatib denied allegations that the current activities of the voluntary unions would deprive needy Jordanians of desperately needed services. saying that the unions' efforts to provide food and other basic commodities for Iraqi children would not collide in any way with the unions' local activi-

The twenty truckloads of goods, described as "a gift from the Jordanian children to the Iraqi children," were presented to representatives of the Iragi People's Committee in the presence of the wife of the Iraqi Ambassador in Jordan. Chairman of the Iraqi People's Committee Abdul Wahab Al Haibati thanked the Jordanian children and people for their efforts, saying that "the generation of Iraqi children now benefitting from Jordanian donations would always be grateful to Jordan for this noble gesture." Two covoys comprising 40 trucks have already transported 520 tonnes of goods to Iraq over the past few weeks, and according to Al Khatib, a tard convoy could be dispatched during the next week if the pace of the donations continued at the current rate.

Meanwhile the JNRCS has embarked on setting up another camp in Azraq in cooperation with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC).

JNRCS President Ahmad Abu Qoura said that the continuous arrival here of in-kind assistance from Germany, the Netherlands, Sweden, Finland, Iceland and Thailand has enabled the two humanitarian societies to pursue relief operations and to embark on setting up a new camp.

Abu Qoura said that these countries had been providing various amounts of tents, blankets, food supplies, powder milk and canned food.

Abu Qoura said Saturday that JNRCS had dispatched yet another of its medical teams to the two camps within the border region to help the other teams, sent earlier there, cope with the growing number of expatriates arriving at the camps.

House to send messages on Gulf issue to world leaders

AMMAN (J.T.) — The Lower House of Parliament Saturday was briefed by Prime Minister Mudar Badran on the latest developments in the Gulf and His Majesty King Hussein's relentless efforts to reach a peaceful settlement for the problem.

At the outset of the session Deputy Issa Reimouni presented a number of proposals covering local, regional and international issues. He suggested sending a cable to King Hussein, expressing appreciation of his efforts to defuse tension in the Gulf, and cables to the Soviet and American presidents on the eve of their summit in Helsinki, appealing to them to apply fairness and justice in dealing with the Gulf situation. Reimouni also suggested sending messages to the United Nations Organisation, the U.N. relief organisations and the Interna-

People race to renew family books

AMMAN (J.T.) — Civil Affairs family registration books in three and Passports offices around the months after expiry date face trial country, throng with citizens wishing to renew the family registration books in order to benefit from the food rationing programme that came into effect on Sept. 1, 1990, but the Civil Affairs and Passports Department Director Issa Al Omari said that most of these citizens would have an unpleasant surprise. In a statement to the Jordan News Agency, Petra, Omari said that most of those applying for a renewal of their family registration books have violated the law by failing to renew the documents within three months after their expiry date.

These citizens seem to have remembered to renew the family registration books only when they found that they were needed to obtain ration cards that enable them purchase subsidised rice, milk and sugar," Omari said. To date, the department issued 634,000 family books to people in Jordan and nearly 200,000 of those have expired without being and the payment of a fine. "The department will study each application separately before referring people to the specialised courts and will renew the family registration books only after the payment of a required fine specified by the courts," Omari

"At the same time contacts are underway with the Ministry of Supply to discuss an extension of the period the public has to obtain ration cards and coupons until all books have been renewed," Omari added.

Most of the citizens applying for a renewal told Petra that they were unaware of a law imposing fines for failure to renew family registration books within three months of their expiry.

They said that the announcement of the Ministry of Supply that it would only issue ration cards to those holding valid family registration books prompted them to apply for a renewal. They said that the general belief was that the family books were official documents serving for all times and purposes.

AMMAN (J.T.) — The first shipment of emergency relief rice from the World Food Programme (WFP) arrived in Amman at midnight Thursday aboard an Antonov aircraft returning from Dhaka to pick up a second load of Bangladeshi evacuees, WFP announced. ' A second shipment of rice was expected late Saturday. The Antonov is expected to bring in 100 tonnes of rice on each of its nine return flight from Dhaka. The total quantity of rice to be brought from Bangladesh is 950 tonnes. Several bags of curry will also be brought on board.

The rice, intended for the people in transit through Jordan from Kuwait and Iraq, is released from the WFP stocks for development projects in Bangladesh as part of the programme's emergency op-eration for the evacuees. WFP, the food aid arm of the United Nations, is providing 9,828 ton-nes of food commodities, part of which (1080 tonnes) has already been released from its stocks in Amman and distributed in different sites.

Arrangements to airlift rice on the Antonov returning empty to Amman were concluded in less than three days, thanks to the close cooperation of the government of Bangladesh, which speeded normal procedures and provided loading free of charge, and the swift effort and assistance received from the government of

The aircraft bringing the rice was chartered by the International Organisation: for Migration (IOM) and the United Nations Disaster Relief Office (UNDRO) to fly Bangladeshi nationals stranded in Jordan back to their home country. The government of Jordan and the U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palesti-nians Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) provide the trucks and the people to unload the rice. The WFP has also chartered another Antonov 124, which arrived in Amman early Saturday morning, bringing 120 tonnes of canned fish from West Germany. In addition, WFP is buying 216 tonnes of red lentils in Syria to be trucked overland to Jordan.

of 11 aircraft — Air India Boeing 747s and Airbuses and an Aerofiot Illyushyn-76 — were scheduled to take off from Amman by midnight Saturday, and an extra flight could be added if procedures could be completed for another 265 people.
Some of the flights will go direct to Bombay while others will land in Dubai, with Indian Air Force planes completing the Dubai-Bombay leg of the trip, Unnikrishnan, who arrived here Friday, told the Jordan Times.

The minister, who was surrounded by at least one thousand Indian evacuees protesting what they saw as inefficiency in handling the evacua-tion during his visit to the grounds of an international exhibition, where evacuees are accommodated, explained that "overflight" problems had posed obstacles in arranging direct air force flights into Jordan for the airlift and therefore the "air bridge" had to be built through Dubai.

3,000 nationals daily

"The entire operation is going into full gear," said the minister. "The magnitude of the problem is such that it needs a massive effort, particularly in view of the suffering of the people in transit."

Unnikrishnan, who was scheduled to hold talks with His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan, conceded that New Delhi had not realised the magnitude of the problems facing Indian evacuees through Jordan since it was focusing its efforts on arranging direct air and sealifts from Baghdad, Basra, Kuwait and Bandar Khomeini in Iran, after Tehran said it was opening its border with Iraq for evacuees from

Kuwait. The efforts fell through when Baghdad remained firm in its insistence that any evacuation of Indians direct from Kuwait or Iraq or across the border with Iran should be linked to India supplying food to Iraq, which is facing a strain in food supplies in the wake of an international embargo ordered by the U.N. Security Comcil. "Obviously, it is a highly sensitive political question and we did our best to convince the international community to understand and appreciate India's position that while we are committed to the international sanctions against Iraq we should make an exception for food and medicine," the minis-ter told the Jordan Times. "After all, we have 170,000 of our own nationals in Kuwait." he pointed out, revealing for the first time that the number of Indians in the emirate was over 200,000 while reports had mentioned 172,000. Jordanian statistics indicate that 36,000 Indian nationals bave crossed into the Kingdom's territory since Aug. 6; another 1,200 have left through Saudi Arabia, several hundreds have crossed over to Turkey from Iraq and an unknown number is believed to be now transiting through Iraq. Unnikrishnan, accompanied by N.M. Josef and Churchil Alemao, was visiting Al Ruweished border post Saturday.

The minister told the Jordan Times that the government was planning to ensure that every flight coming ino Jordan from India will be carrying relief supplies for the Indians stranded here. These include tents, blankets, essential life-saving drugs and foodstuff, he Seventy tonnes of Indian-donated foodstuff were handed over to Jordanian authorities Friday, in the first consignment of humanitarian aid to Jordan to help the Kingdom cope with the massive flood of evacuees from Kuwait. Unnikrishnan explained that India would continue to airlift food supplies to Jordan to help Indians stranded here and this assistance is not included in the $600,000 aid to Jordan announced by the government

Jordan, India to boost trade

AMMAN (J.T.) — A senior Indian government official held talks here Saturday with the Secretary-General of the Ministry of Industry and Trade Ibrahim Badran on ways to promote the sale of Indian goods on Jordanian markets and to promote and increase bilateral trade.

V.D.N. Rao, who is India's deputy minister of trade, said after the talks that his country hoped that the volume of trade between Jordan and India would be increased so that there would be an adjustment in the balance of trade which is now heavily in favour of Jordan.

The Jordan News Agency, Petra, quoted Badran as saying that India is the major importer of Jordan's phosphate, potash and cement, and that the overail annual trade volume between the two countries exceeds $200 million in value.

He said that Jordan imported only up to $20 million worth of goods from India every year, and discussions were focusing on ways to help India sell more of its national products to Jordan.

In September last year Rao came to Jordan and opened a nine-day trade and industrial ex-

Legal questions and Gulf build-up

AS Washington and London appear to be so zealous about the application of international law and order and are championing their cause in the Gulf crisis, they would be weil-advised to check with their legal advisers about the conformity of their actions in that region with U.N. law books. When the French defence minister recently raised questions about the legality of any offensive action against Iraq, even in Kuwait, the U.S. and Britain were on top of the list that called for his head after accusing him of pulling the rug from under their feet. Now the sane Arab countries are still awaiting the response of the Western world to the legal question posed by the French defence minister. And before they waste much time looking for some untenable legal construction of relevant international law, Western capitals should know beforehand that the legal issue implied in any military offensive against Iraq has already been painstakingly researched and that the rule of thumb in such situations is that only the United Nations Security Council can authorise any military intervention that is potentially offensive. That would explain the Soviets' repeated warnings to Washington that only the Security Council is empowered to authorise the resort to force in similar circumstances. This being the legal case, perhaps Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev would take time during today's summit in Helsinki to remind President Bush of the rule of law.

In addition, Bush needs to be asked how he ever came to view his country as an aggrieved party in the eyes of international law. We do not know how and why Washington and London in particular think that they have enough legal standing to rectify the situation in the Gulf unless they believe and are able to convince any credible court of law that they own Kuwait and Saudi Arabia and all the oil that lies beneath them. Gorbachev must not fall in the trap of ever consenting to the deployment of Western troops and armadas in the Gulf region since such massive build-up has never been authorised by the U.N. Security Council in the first place. Gorbachev would have an ample opportunity to do just that as well as to remind Washington and London and all other parties dragged into the Gulf mess that their military involvement makes them potential aggressors. Gorbachev's clear and loud message to Bush should be that the Americans have to listen to the voice of reason before Droceed:ne adventures that could be deadly a catastrophic.

THE world would have liked to see the Americans and their allies showing a little degree of concern over the plight of the tens of thousands of Asian expatriates stranded in Jordan and come to their aid, said the Al Ra'i daily Saturday. The Americans and their allies were fast to move towards the Middle East in order to stem Iraq's attempt to regain its rights, and to impose Western hegemony on the Arabs, but they showed little interest in helping Jordan cope with the task of feeding and repatriating the evacuees, the paper noted. Jordan, despite its own economic difficulties, was prompt in responding to human sufferings and to the needs of those expatriates who belong to countries that had aligned themselves with the United States and its allies while other governments were passive in thier response even to the needs of thier own nationals, the paper noted. Jordan would have liked to see the armies of U.S. allies in our region charging their troops with the task of relieving their own nationals and helping them to get out of Jordan and Iraq, thus showing a degree of humanitarian concern, the power said. Evacuees from Western nations have been accorded suitable concern by their governments, but thousands of other nationals remain stranded in Jordan, Kuwait and Iraq, disregarded by their own governments and not receiving the minimum required care and help, the paper continued. Had it not been for Jordan's prompt help thousands of evacuees would have been dead by now; and despite the Kingdom's current hardships nothing can stop its people from extending a helping hand to the destitute people stranded here. the paper said. The sufferings of helpless men, women and children will serve as a curse on the American imperialist power and its small allies in our region.

A columnist in Al Ra'i daily questions the attitude of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) vis-a-vis the Western-imposed ban on food supplies to Iraqi children, and says that the sanctions were arbitrary and violating United Nations treaties on the protection of civilians. Salah Abdal Samad says that international conventions do not condone the starving of people nor denying them medical treatment; and even enemy soldiers and prisoners of war are entitled to medical treatment under the U.N. laws and principles. The ICRC should have spearheaded efforts to oppose sanctions on food and medical supplies to the civilian population of Iraq, and should have urged the Security Council to rescind all measures that would cause sufferings to the civilians, said the writer. Preventing women and children and old people in Iraq from receiving food and medicine, is but an act of barbarism and an outrageous act of international terrorism, he added. The ICRC's mission should not be confined to providing assistance to the victims of natural disasters, but should rather serve as a deterrent to inhuman actions such as those now being exercised on Iraq, he adds. Abdul Samad called on the Jordan National Red Crescent Society to promptly raise the question of sanctions on food and medicine with the ICRC and help take the right decision. Sawt Al Shaab daily discussed the coming Helsinki summit between the United States and the Soviet Union, and said that the Gulf crisis is certain to be one of the main topics on the agenda. The paper said that regional conflicts in Cambodia and Afghanistan are bound to be discussed as well, but most attention will be focused on Moscow's response to American pressures with regard to the handling of the Gulf issue. We find in Moscow's call for an international conference to tackle all issues in the Middle East region as very positive, and it is hoped that such proposal would bring Washington's attention to the need to implement Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338 as well as 660, said the paper.

Sunday's Economic Pulse

Jordan's economic crisis aggravated by Gulf conflict

JORDAN's economic difficulties resulting from the Guif crisis were very much aggravated because Jordan was already in a difficult position before the crisis. The country was just recovering from a typical heavy external indebtedness crisis.

After sixteen months of adherence ot a strict economic adjustment programme sponsored by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) — April 89 to July 90 - Jordan managed to restore a reasonable state of stability. Deterioration was definitely halted. The new relative stability was not solid enough yet, but it passed the test of time and earned enough credibility. It was abundantly clear that the Jordanian economy was heading in the right

When the adjustment programme started to yield results, and Jordan was in many cases able to beat the objectives set forth by the IMF experts, thanks to Jordanian people sacrifices, the Gulf crisis erupted and threatened the economic recovery with a major setback.

The Jordanian Government was obviously alarmed by the economic impact of the crisis and complained to the United Nations (U.N.), in accordance with Article 50 of the U.N. Charter. The direct losses to the Jordanian economy, the Ministry of Finance argued, could reach $1.5 to 2.0 billion a year, or one third of the national income as a whole, and that is only the direct impact, let alone the indirect impact resulting from the esca-

The U.N. Security Council was facing two options: Either to exempt Jordan from adherence to the sanctions, because they hurt Jordan much more than Irac, or coming up with the proper compensation. So far, neither options were taken. The pressure against Jordan to comply with the sanctions is nevertheless mounting, but the compensation package does not seem to be forthcoming.

Apparently, the argument of the Jordanian Government about the country's heavy losses in case of the strict application of the U.N. sanctions was accepted, as no one was able to refute the detailed table of direct losses. Instead of appreciating the position of Jordan, some Western journalists started to question the political stability of the country if all these losses will actually take

In this regard, we have to point out that the heavy losses talked about will either be compensated properly, or they should not happen in the first place, because Jordan is not under legal obligation to abide by the harmful sanctions before the damages are fairly compensated.

On the other hand, economic hardships that may be experienced by the Jordanian population under the circumstances will not be blamed on the Government, as happened in April 1989. They will be blamed on the American-British-Israeli designs to starve an Arab people to submission.

Jordanians are not scared of the economic consequences because they think in political and national terms, and seem to be ready to pay the economic price that goes with their standing.

Jordan may be taking a short term risk by siding with Iraq. But in the longer term it is in the best interest of Jordan that the old Arab Order be abolished in favour of a new and a more just system. For the last

40 years, Jordan was taking on its shoulders a huge responsibility as a confrontation state and a buffer zone between the Israeli military machine and the Arab oil wealth. One of each four men of the Jordanian labour force is in the army, the highest ratio in the world at peace or war times. The small Jordanian economy cannot afford to sustain this army on its own. Arab financial aid is not a handout as we were told. it is an Arab responsibility that must be discharged. The new Arab Order which will emerge soon should recognise the right of all Arabs in the Arab oil wealth. Altering and reforming the current unfair Arab Order, is a cause that is worth the

Western media biased coverage, concealed truth

By Khaled Mahadeen

THE STREETS of London last Saturday witnessed a major demonstration in which more than 30,000 British people took part to protest foreign intervention in the Gulf region. The protest was organised by two Labour Party members. Demonstrators carried posters to the American embassy with a slogan reading-"stop sending our sons to die in defence of American oil companies." But the demonstrators were prevented from reaching the embassy building which was cordoned off and guarded by British police. People in Britain waited to watch the demonstration on television, but not a single television station dared to present the scene, nor did a reporter mention that it ever took place. It seems in the West democratic, governments possess the right to decide what is suitable for media coverage and what is not, and what is to be taken out from reports. The so-called information freedom under such democracies is a big

In Amman last Tuesday, a similar picture repeated itself, reflecting the facts about the Western democracies. Journalists, television crews, and radio and media correspondents thronged the Queen Alia International Airport in Amman to report on the arrival, there from Iraq, of 70 French men and women and children; and as they were making ready to meet the returnees, they were surprised to learn their mission was impossible. When they tried to find out why, they were told by French embassy officials in Amman that they can by no means go near the returning group not can they

The journalists then pleaded with the French embassy officials, trying to persuade them to change their mind, pledging that they would be very careful when talking to the men and women about their stay in Iraq and the trip and promising not to relay to their television, radio and newspapers anything that might endanger the lives of French men left behind in Iraq and Kuwait. But a French embassy official smiled and said that his government does not want to convey to the French people at home any-thing that might give any posi-tive indication about the good treatment of the Iraqi govern-

It is indeed, the same "democratic deceptive game" played in the media shifting from the streets of London to Queen Alia International Airport in Amman. This game has a single objective: To maintain a false propaganda campaign and win public support in the West for any action taken against Iraq.

All this is being practised at a time when the West contimes to brag about the "honesty and integrity" of the West-ern nations in dealing with the Gulf crisis or any other Arab or Islamic problems for that

plaining that their newspapers, radio and television stations continue to deliberately distort their reports sent from Amman about the situation in the Gulf and the Middle East region. They said that their superiors and employers either scrap large parts of their reports or carry out montage work in such a manner that would completely distort the report and leave what is only convenient to help twist the facts and present Iraq in an ugly image to the public. Such an attitude, they said, have prompted many journalists to send home a trickle of reports or none at

Some journalists told me that their employers had in-deed issued them warnings against ever protesting such practice, and, in some cases, non-complying journalists have been replace

A British journalist confessed that he was feeling ashamed of such policy; and although his employers could easily distort facts and reports without sending media people out to the Middle East, these employers seem to be keen or having journalists in the field to serve as tools for distortion against their own will. "This." he said, "will no doubt harm our image before our readers and viewers back home, specially after discovering that we have been feeding them with false reports from far away..." A French journalist told me that her government does not want any one to talk to those arriving from Iraq, to learn from them about the good treatment by the Iraqis. She said a smile on the face of women or children, should not appear on television since such smile tends to contradict the image which Western governments want to project about the Iraqi government.

She added laughing: "I was afraid they would ask the arrivals from Baghdad to take off their shoes, ruffle their hair and rip their clothes and also cover their faces with yellow colours before posing for photographers and television crews with tears rolling down from their eyes so that we can tell lies to the French people and say: Look what the Iraqis have done to the French

"What we have seen from a distance," the journalist added, "was that all the arrivals were in very good health, happy and looking as if they were just returning from a very enjoyable holiday." This clearly manifests the Western democracies' game which is disgusting by all standards. Finally, we can ask ourselves whether there is any further manifestation of malice and hatred against us harboured and displayed in all ugliness by all countries hostile to our rights to life, to dignity, to self-sufficiency, to development and progress and finally to our unity?

Such as, Arab aspirations together constitute a horrible nightmare now weighing heavily on the chest of the enemies in the hostile camp led by Washington and embodying colonial forces whose history abounds with bitter defeats at the hand of nations.

Gorbachev, troubled at home, heads for summit of hope SO HOW'S THE FREE MARKET

By Bryan Brumley The Associated Press

MOSCOW - Mikhail S. Gorbachev carries a bag full of troubles to Helsinki.

He's attending a summit full of hope, with the United States and the Soviet Union united in opposition to the Iraqi invasion of have been on the same side of a global crisis since World War II.

But at home, Gorbachev's popularity is plummeting, the Soviet economy is defying predictions it couldn't get worse, and most of the 15 Soviet republics. including mother Russia, have declared sovereignty or independence from the central Communist government that Gor-

After the summit. Gorbachev is expected to rush back to Moscow to present economic reforms that are likely to strip central authorities of much of their domestic power and largely dismember the state planning apparatus that Josef Stalin assembled at the cost of millions of lives.

Despite the tumult on the home front. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze has hailed the Sunday summit in Helsinki as a "landmark." Soviet media are describing it as a new phase in superpower coopera-

History could well be made in Helsinki

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said in an interview Friday that the Soviet Union would be willing to send military forces to the Middle East under a military staff committee that included officers from the five permanent members of the-U.N. Security Council: the United States, Soviet Union, France, Britain and China.

The aim, he said, was not only to help the United States enforce U.N. Security Council sanctions against Iraq, but also to impose Soviet controls on any unilateral military actions against Iraq by the United States.

The implication is that despite the collapse of the Soviet empire in Eastern Europe and the malaise at home, the Soviet Union retains its superpower status. But that view is not universally held. Andrei Kortunov, a young Soviet scholar at the U.S-Canada Institute, publicly classified his nation as a regular rather than a superpower last June. His analysis has been embraced by a number of respected American

Sovietologists. "The Soviet Union is not still a superpower, at least as pertains to its capability of projecting global power in a low-violence

In published assessments of Bush's career, the word "brilliant" is conspicuously absent. ### Graf, Sabatini to clash at Burrell and Ottey star in U.S. Open tennis final

NEW YORK (R) — Steffi Graf and her longtime rival Gabriela Sabatini took different paths but both reached their final destination with victories in the semifinals of the U.S. Open Friday.

Graf, the two-time defending champion, crushed former French Open winner Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain 6-1, 6-2. while Sabatini went the distance to beat American Mary Joe Fernandez 7-5, 5-7, 6-3 in a stadium court struggle at the National Tennis Centre.

The women's final, worth $350,000 to the winner, will be held in between the two men's semifinals on the U.S. Open's 'super Saturday" programme.

Boris Becker, the secondseeded defending champion, plays fourth-seeded American Andre Agassi in the first semifinal, with unseeded, four-time open champion John McEnroe playing 12th-seeded fellow-American Pete Sampras after the women's title match.

Graf was near perfect in her demolition of Sanchez, who had ruined the West German's bid for a second successive Grand Slam sweep by beating her in the 1989 French Open final.

"The way I was playing I couldn't have been much better," Graf said after her 54 minute

"I was close to the limit." Sabatini deserted her topspin baseline game in favour of spirited assaults on the net to subdue the stubborn 18-year-old Fer-

"I'm ready to win," the 20-year-old Sabatini said. "We will see tomomow."

Graf, who leads her personal series with Sabatini 18-3, has other ideas about the outcome of this year's final Grand Slam

An upset victim at both the French and Wimbledon championships this year after taking the Australian Open crown, Graf is determined to finish 1990 in

"It would be something major for me to win," said Graf, who celebrated her record 160th consecutive week on top of the rankings despite a season in which she had sinus surgery and withstood a tabloid wave of upsetting allegations about the love life of her father and coach, Peter.

"It would mean a lot to me," Graf said about winning the title. "It never really mattered this much in a long, long time."

A victory in Saturday's final would make Graf the first woman to win three consecutive U.S. titles since Chris Event, who finished a run of four in a row in-

Standing in her way will be Sabatini.

Sabatini, more assured of her volley since working with new coach Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil, wore a path to the net to reverse the early momentum gained by Fernandez, making a comeback from a season marred by injuries, rushed to a 4-1 lead in the first set before Sabatini turned up the pressure by forcing the attack.

The fifth-seeded Argentine took four successive games to lead 5-4 and then won the set by breaking Fernandez with a forehand volley in the 12th game.

Fernandez fought her way back as both players and trouble holding serve in the second set. The American, who ran around Sabacross-court forehands, broke in the 11th game at 15 and then served a love game to force a third set. Sabatini scored the only service break of the third set in a tensionpacked eighth game when she made good on her third breakpoint by touching off her second successive backhand drop volley.

The Argentine set up match point with a sprawling backhand volley and Fernandez ended the two-hour, 43-minute match by spraying a forehand wide. "When I turned around and saw the ball was in - that was one of the biggest shots I ever made," Sabatini said about her Beckeresque winner. "I had fun volleying," said

Sabatini, who made 92 approaches to the net, winning 56 points in the process.

Fernandez, who lost to Graf in the Australian Open final, said Sabatini could be tough Saturday. "She's going to be really excited," said Fernandez, who has suffered this season from tendinitis in her right shoulder, a pulled hamstring, a back injury and a slight tear of the cartilage in her right knee. "She's got a shot at it." Graf's victim was not so sure.

"I think she's playing much better now than in Paris or at Wimbledon," Sanchez said about Graf. "She has so much confi-

"She played unbelievable," the sixth-seeded Sanchez said. "I think she's going to win the tournament.

En discutant quelques instants avec les gamins qui vendent les journaux au feu rouge, Moham-med apprend que «Al-Nida», le journal irako-koweitien, s'est vendu comme des petits-pains et qu'il n'en reste plus un seul. Il décide qu'il ira ce soir dans une librairie pour acheter ce dont il a besoin: autres journaux, magazines et livres. Pour le moment, «Al-Thawra» hui suffit... C'est une chance d'ailleurs qu'il ait pu en acheter un exemplaire avant qu'il n'y en ait plus. Le petit vendeur de journaux se presse d'aller en chercher d'autres dans un magasin voisin. Ces gamins, pense Mohammed, qui étaient à la fois des mendiants et des clochards, se retrouvent maintenant dans une position confortable: ils vendent sans répit leur large stock de journaux arabes les journaux irakiens en particulier-, aux feux ronges, en basse ville et dans tous les lieux populaires. Ils ne re-présentent plus un phénomène

Le faux problème de l'invasion du Koweit

Mardi dernier s'est tenue au CERMOC (Centre d'Etudes et de Recherches sur le Moyen-Orient Contemporain) une intéressante table ronde sur la crise du Golfe. Un juriste, un économiste et un sociologue y participaient: le député au parlement jordanien, Husni Shiab, l'expert financier, Ghassan Musaliam, et l'éditorialiste du «Jourdain», Suleiman Sweiss. Chacun dans son domaine, les trois hommes ont démontré, en analysant les causes et les conséquences de la crise, que l'intervention des Etats-Unis en Arabie Saoudite était d'une gravité sans commune mesure avec l'invasion du Koweit par les troupes de Saddam Hussein.

Juriste, Husni Shiab a insisté sur le lien historique qui existe entre l'Irak et le Koweit. Région commune de l'empire ottoman jusqu'à ce que les puissances coloniales la découpe après la pre-mière guerre mondiale, les deux «pays» forment une seule et même entité historique. S'ap-puyant sur ce fait, M. Shiab a insisté sur l'idée que le droit international, auquel l'Organisation des Nations Unies doit se conformer car il est plus général que le sien, plaide en faveur de l'Irak.

Soulignant d'autre part que l'embargo international, devenu blocus, a pour conséquence d'affamer et de mettre en danger le peuple irakien faute d'alimentation et de médicaments, le député estime que ces mesures sont contraires à la charte même des Nations Unies. Pour lui, il ne fait pas de doute que l'appel à la démocratie par les Occidentaux et par les Etats-Unis en particulier (champions de la transgression du droit international par centrale et leur soutien à Israël en dépit de ses exactions) est une hypocrisie qui cache des intérêts beaucoup moins avouables.

C'est précisément sur ces intérêts qu'a rebondi l'économiste Ghassan Musallam. Pour lui, la guerre économique des pays industrialisés contre les pays en voie de développement a été déclarée bien avant l'invasion du Koweit par l'Irak et l'intervention américaine qui n'en sont que la trace objective. Il est clair selon hui que la perspective rêvée d'un nouvel ordre économique mondial a échoué. Du côté des pays industrialisés, les Etats-Unis sont littéralement envahis par leurs concurrents japonais et européens dont les investissements aux USA sont supérieurs à l'ensemble des investissements américains dans le monde entier. Du côté des pays en voie de développement, le maintien de la valeur réelle de leurs exportations n'a pas pu être obtenu. L'ensemble de leur production a d'augmenter. La dette mondiale, impossible à régier, devenait un danger pour la planète et en tout premier lieu pour les Américains. Leur entrée en Arabie Saoudite est, selon ce raisonnement, un moyen de contrôler le marché mondial du pétrole pour en urer profit et pour regagner du pouvoir face aux économies concorrentes et menacantes: celle du Japon et celle de l'Europe, bientôt unie et élargie aux pays de

Renchérissant, le sociologue Suleiman Sweiss a rappelé que l'économie koweitienne, fondée autrefois sur l'agriculture, l'élevage, la pêche et la culture des perles avait été pervertie par l'exploitation pétrolière dont les perdu 20% de sa valeur alors que bénéfices furent accaparés par ment leur intervention dan les produits importés ne cessaient une famille et placés à l'étranger problème purement arabe. bénéfices furent accaparés par

An delà d'Helsinki

Et si George Bush et Mikhail Gorbatchev pouvaient jouer les théoriciens à Helsinki! Je doute fort qu'une telle hypothèse ne fasse rire nombre d'historiens. Mais comme notre vie est faite de contradictions et de mythes, alors tout devient possible.

Ainsi à Helsinki, le «théoricien» américain dira à son homologue soviétique -par interprètes interposéscombien il était dangereux de rompre brutalement l'équilibre actuel, de remettre en cause les valeurs «universelles» et de menacer l'ordre international dont Washington se fait 'avocat...

Mais parleront-ils de la nature de l'équilibre rompu par l'Irak et de la portée des valeurs contestées? Tenteront-ils de déceler les germes d'une crise qui ne cesse d'être mise en scène, scénarii à l'appui?

Non, à Helsinki il ne sera pas question de criséologie mais bien de stratégie. Ön songera surtout au nouveau consensus et aux nouvelles alliances. Les Irakiens l'ont compris. C'est pourquoi Tarek Aziz négociera aujourd'hui à Téhéran l'une des cartes maîtresses dont dispose encore Bagdad.

Sur une question de la salle mettant en doute les qualités humanistes et démocratiques de Saddam Hussein, notre éditorialiste mit clairement en évidence une hiérarchie des problèmes posés par la crise du Golfe. «Je ne pense pas que Saddam Hussein soit un démocrate et je pense en effet qu'il est dangereux, a-t-il expliqué. Mais je pense en même temps que l'intervention américaine en Arabie Saoudite est d'une tout autre gravité: débarrassons-nous d'abord des Américains et de l'interventionnisme; il sera toujours temps de régler ensuite, entre nous, le problème de Saddam Hussein.»

La leçon principale de cette table ronde est sans doute cellelà: Saddam Hussein a réussi a ramener clairement le problème arabe à ses origines premières: celle d'une richesse locale usurpée par les puissances occidentales, rien d'autre ne pouvant justifier raisonnablement leur intervention dans ce

Tournée. A l'issue d'une tournée de dix jours qui l'a conduit successivement en Libye, en Tunisie, en Algérie, en Mauritanie, au Maroc, puis en Espagne, en Grande-Bretagne, en RFA, en France et en Italie, le roi Hussein s'est rendu cette semaine en Irak où il a rencontré le président Saddam Hussein. En France, le roi Hussein a obtenu une aide d'urgence de quatre millions de F (750.000 dollars) destinée à contribuer au transit des réfugiés venus du Koweit et Kouchner. Bernard Kouchner, secrétaire d'Etat français à l'action humanitaire, a visité cette semaine les camps installés en Jordanie pour les évacués du Koweit et d'Irak. Il est arrivé mercredi à Amman à bord d'un avion spécial envoyé par le gouvernement français pour ramener à Paris ses ressortissants arrivés dans la capitale jordanien-ne. Mme Georgina Dufoix, présidente de la Croix-Rouge française, se trouvait également à bord de l'avion d'Air-France avec lequel elle est repartie en compagnie des évacués sur la capitale française. M. Kouchner a déclaré que le gouvernement français ne séparait pas la politique de la main tendue envers les évacués et la Jordanie d'une politique de fermeté face à l'Irak, visant à obtenir le retrait du Koweit et la libération des «otages».

Rapatriement. L'Organisation Internationale pour les Migrations (OIM), basée à Genève, a mis en place lundi à Amman un pont àérien en collaboration avec plusieurs instances internationales pour rapatrier les ressortissants des pays les plus démunis. Lundi soir, un premier groupe de quelque 250 Srilankaises a embarqué à bord d'un Airbus des Jordan Airlines affrêté par l'OIM, à destination de Colombo. D'autres vols ont été, ou vont être, organisés avec différentes compagnies aériennes, dont Air-France, à destination du Sri-Lanka et du Bengladesh.

Incursion. Deux jeunes excursionnistes israéliens disparus depuis la fin août ont passé plusieurs jours en Jordanie avant d'être ramenés à la frontière israélienne par la police jordanienne. Les deux jeunes gens ont visité Petra pendant une journée entière, mitraillant de leurs appareils photo les vestiges de la cité nabatéenne. Ils se sont ensuite rendus en auto-stop à Aqaba, où les autorités jordaniennes ont multiplié les contrôles depuis le début de la crise du Golfe. Incapables de présenter des papiers d'identité, ils ont été arrêtés, interrogés pendant plusieurs jours et expédiés sous bonne garde à Amman. Après l'intervention de plusieurs pays et organisations à la demande d'Israël, les deux garçons ont franchi jeudi matin le pont Allenby en direction d'Israël. Fait sans précédent, le ministère israélien des Affaires étrangères a adressé publiquement ses remerciements au roi Hussein pour la conclusion heurense de cette affaire.

Ligne. Le secrétaire général de la Ligue arabe, M. Chedli Klibi, a démissionné lundi de son poste. Tunisien, M. Klibi était secrétaire général depuis 1979, date du transfert du siège de la Ligue du Caire à l'unis après la signature des accords égypto-israéliens de Camp David. M. Klibi semble avoir préféré ne pas prendre la responsabilité de la division de la Ligue arabe, en démissionnant avant la session extraordinaire de demain au Caire où doit être annoncé le transfert du siège de la Ligue dans la capitale égyptienne.

Sénégalais. Le président sénégalais Abdou Diouf a annoncé que son pays allait envoyer un contingent militaire en Arabie Saoudite, après accord avec le gouvernement saoudien. Le Sénégal sera ainsi le premier pays d'Afrique noire à envoyer des troupes en Arabie

Saoudiennes. Les jeunes Saoudiennes ont été autorisées pour la première fois dans l'histoire du royaume saoudien à servir dans 'armée pour défendre leur pays. Le roi Fahd a donné des directives pour «engager les jeunes saoudiennes qui se portent volontaires pour servir dans les secteurs sanitaires, humanitaires et médicaux de l'armée et participer à la défense de la patrie.»

USA-Egypte. George Bush a proposé au Congrès américain la remise de la dette militaire égyptienne à l'égard des Etats-Unis. Si le Congrès accepte cette proposition, l'Egypte sera dispensée de rembourser quelque 600 millions de dollars par an aux États-Unis, capital et intérêts compris. A cet avantage devrait normalement s'ajouter l'aide militaire et économique annuelle que les Etats-Unis accordent à l'Egypte depuis les accords de Camp David et qui s'élèvent actuellement à 2,2 milliards de dollars. Le ministre israélien des Finances, Ytzhak Moda'i, a annoncé son intention de demander au gouvernement américain l'annulation de dettes contractées par Israel envers les Etats-Unis, parallèlement à cette annulation de celles de l'Egypte.

Message. Le ministère irakien de l'information a proposé jeudi que le président Bush -qui s'était plaint de ne pas pouvoir présenter ses vues aux Irakiens comme peut le faire Saddam Hussein à la télévision américaine- s'adresse au peuple irakien par l'intermédiaire de la télévision irakienne. George Bush a accepté cette proposition et va enregistrer, au cours des prochains jours, un message télévisé pour le peuple irakien afin d'exposer ses objectifs dans la crise du Golfe. Un message qui, selon l'ambassadeur d'Irak à Washington, sera diffusé intégralement et sans montage sur les écrans irakiens.

Allende. Plusieurs dizaine de milliers de personnes, dont le président chilien Patricio Aylwin et le premier ministre français Michel Rocard, ont assisté mardi à Santiago aux funérailles nationales de l'ancien président Salvador Allende, mort en 1973 lors du coup d'Etat militaire. Exhumée tôt mardi matin d'un cimetière de Vina del Mar (110 km à l'ouest de Santiago), où elle avait été enterrée secrètement par les militaires après le coup d'Etat, la dépouille de Salvador Allende a été transférée dans la capitale et inhumée officiellement au cimetière central de Santiago.

PMA. Les dirigeants du Tiers-Monde réunis à Paris pour la conférence sur les Pays les Moins Avancés (PMA) ont réclamé mardi une participation à la croissance mondiale à travers une aide accrue des riches appuyant les efforts des pauvres pour sortir du sousdéveloppement. en 1989 l'aide publique au développement pour les PMA n'atteignait qu'une moyenne de 0,09% du PNB des pays développés, les Etats-Unis, lanterne rouge, n'y consacrant que 0,04%. La France a annoncé à l'occasion de cette conférence qu'elle augmentera son effort en faveur des 41 PMA par un relèvement de son aide publique au développement vers l'objectif de 0,7% de son PIB, contre 0,54% aujourd'hui.

Energie. Le ministre français de l'Industrie, Roger Fauroux, a présenté mercredi un catalogue de mesures étudiées par le gouvernement afin d'économiser environ 30 millions de tonnes équivalent pétrole en dix ans. Les mesures étudiées, qui devraient entrer en rigneur dès l'année prochaine dans la perspective d'un nouveau choc trolier, vont des incitations fiscales pour la régulation du chauffage des logements et pour l'achat de voitures électriques, à des amortissements exceptionnels pour les entreprises investissant dans des dispositifs économisant l'énergie.

Inhumation. Les 56 victimes non-identifiées de l'attentat contre le DC10 de la compagnie française UTA, commis le 19 septembre 1989 au dessus du Niger, ont été inhumées mardi au cimetière parisien du Père-Lachaise, en présence de 300 personnes. Dans un dernier hommage, les noms des 170 passagers morts dans l'explosion de l'avion au-dessus du désert de Ténéré au Niger, ont été prononcés devant la foule recueillie. Les représentants de quatre cultes -catholique, protestant, orthodoxe et musulman- ont, tour à tour, dit une prière, tandis que Mme Edwige Avice, ninistre délégué auprès du ministre des Affaires étrangères, exprimait, au nom du gouvernement, sa «sympathie» et sa «tristesse».

OM. L'Allemand Franz Beckenbauer a officiellement été engagé par le club de football français de première division, l'Olympique de Marseille (OM), pour une durée de deux ans. L'ex-entraîneur de l'équipe de RFA, vainqueur du Mondiale en Italie, occupera les fonctions de directeur technique général.

Beaujolais. Les vendanges en Beaujolais, pleines de promesses et exceptionnellement précoces, ont débuté hundi matin, avec une semaine d'avance par rapport à l'an dernier, et vont s'étaler sur un mois. Les vagues de vendangeurs ont commencé à prendre possession du territoire ratissant consciencieusement et «à l'ancienne», pour ne pas abimer les grappes qui doivent être impérativemen ramassées entières.

Il y a quelques jours, un groupe de quatre évacués asiatiques rédigeait un mémorandum critiquant et rejetant les efforts menés par la Croix-Rouge dans les camps... Le CICR considère ces actes comme la manifestation de perturbations psychologiques liées à la pénible situation des évacués d'Irak et du Koweit.

Cependant, le porte-parole du CICR, Roland Sidler, affirme que l'équipe de la Croix-Rouge a aussi ses plaintes à formuler. «Il arrive souvent que des évacués du camp coupent les conduites des camions d'ean dès qu'ils arrivent pour remplir leurs seaux. ### Sommet d'Helsinki

La diplomatie ou les armes

George Bush et Mikhail Gorbatchev se rencontrent anjourd'hui à Helsinki (Finlande) pour un échange de vues sur la crise du Golfe. Ce sommet important intervient après une semaine marquée par des prises de position relativement divergentes de la part de chacun des deux grands.

Mardi, à Vladivostok, l'Union Soviétique a proposé, par la bouche de son ministre des Affaires étrangères, Edouard Chevernadzé, la réunion d'une conférence internationale sur le conflit israélo-arabe, élargie au conflit du Golfe. Une conférence qui, pour être constructive, devrait réunir des Etats dont les ntagonismes ont rarement été aussi vifs qu'anjourd'hui: l'Irak, le Koweit, l'Arabie Saoudite, la Jordanie, l'Egypte, la Syrie, l'OLP, le Liban et Israël. Une proposition, qui, d'ailleurs, est relativement proche de celle avancée par le président irakien Saddam Hussein au début du mois d'août, qui consistait à débattre en même temps de «toutes les occupations» du Proche-Orient: le Koweit, les territoires palestiniens, le Golan et le Liban.

De leur côté, les Etats-Unis ont avancé une option qui laisse beaucoup moins de place à la négociation diplomatique puisqu'elle consiste en une alliance militaire américano-arabe sur le modèle de l'OTAN, avec des bases américaines permanentes dans les pays acceptant cette alliance. Cette proposition, avancée par le secrétaire d'Etat Américain James Baker, rappelle l'idée du pacte de Bagdad, dirigé dans les années 1950 contre l'Union Soviétique et qui avait mis le feu aux poudres au Proche-Orient à cette époque.

Cette proposition a soulevé la colère de Saddam Hussein, qui, dans un communiqué diffusé mercredi par la télévision irakienne, a appelé les peuples saoudien et égyptien à se révolter contre leurs dirigeants. Il a également appelé à la guerre sainte pour la libération des lieux saints de l'Islam, affirmant que le cliquetis des armes ou leur utilisation ne fera que renforcer la détermination irakienne. «Nous ne saurons être tranquilles, a-t-il ajouté, avant que le dernier soldat (étranger) ne quitte de gré ou de force la

La France a tenu à marquer sa distance face à ces offensives verbales. Dans une conférence de presse, le président François Mitterrand a affirmé que dans l'hypothèse d'une intervention américaine soudaine dans le Golfe, il n'engagerait la France que sur ce qu'il en connaîtrait et qu'en exécution des dispositions des Nations-Unies.

Le chef de l'Etat français a ajouté que nous restions sans aucun doute dans une logique de guerre et qu'il fallait tout faire pour en sortir dans le respect du droit international.

Entre la solutions diplomatique, privilégiée par Moscou, et l'option militaire, prônée par Washington, il sera sans doute difficile de trancher à Helsinki. (Agences)

Le retour des Alpes-Maritimes à la France

amusez surtout pas à lire certains noms propres à l'envers. Cela aigue de (bonne) foi.)

Après de longues observations du mouvement des étoiles et des astres, mon ami Sumadartson, astrologue confirmé, me confia un jour la chose suivante:

-A cause de l'abus de drogue et d'alcool, une épidémie de sousdéveloppement frappera, vers la fin du XXIème siècle, les Etats-Ums d'Amérique et les pays de l'Europe Unifiée. Les pays d'Afrique ainsi que les Etats Arabes Unis (EAU) deviendront des pays super-industrialisés et commenceront à rechercher des marchés ainsi que des sources de matières premières et d'énergie dans les nouveaux pays sousdéveloppés, notamment en Amérique et en Europe.

Suite à ces rivalités, d'ordre économique surtout, entre les nouvelles puissances industrielles de l'Afrique, une guerre destructrice éclatera entre l'Angola (à laquelle se joindra l'Europe unifiée) d'une part, et les autres pays de l'Afrique (auxquels se joindront les États Arabes Unis et la plupart des autres pays du monde) d'antre part. Cette guer-re se terminera par une défaite humiliante de l'Angola et de son alliée l'Europe en 2318. Par la suite, l'Europe sera morcelée en vingt-deux Etats, placés sous mandat ou sous protectorat de l'une ou l'autre des deux grandes puissances africaines victorieuses: le grand Madagascar et la Tanza-

Comme certains de ces Setsinois seront influents dans le royaume du grand Madagascar. le ministre des affaires étrangères malgache, du nom de Roufiab, finira par leur promettre en l'an 2317 de les aider à «reconstituer» leur Etat aux Pays-Bas.

Aidés par les Malgaches, les Tanzaniens, les Arabes et les Soviétiques, les Setsinois finiront par établir un Etat, en 2348, dans une partie des Pays-Bas et occuperont, en 2367, la totalité des Pays-Bas ainsi que des parties de la Belgique et de l'Allemagne. Ils deviendront par la suite les alliés stratégiques des Arabes et les gardiens de leurs intérêts en Europe. Forts de cette alliance, ils se mettront à rêver d'occuper tous les territoires s'étendant entre la Seine et le Danube.

Quant à la France, elle gardera à peu près ses frontières actuelles. Elle ne perdra, en définitive, que le département des Alpes-Maritimes. Dès l'an 2299, en effet, les Malgaches, ayant eu besoin d'établir un comptoir com-mercial au nord-ouest de la Méditerranée, occuperont ce département et le déclareront protectorat malgache, malgré les protestations véhémentes des Français. Ils baptiseront leur nouveau protectorat du nom de Tiewok («Petite marionnette» en maigache) et installeront à sa tête un prince d'une famille d'origine italienne, la famille Habbas (sig-nifiant «insatiable» en italien du XIIIème siècle).

Poussés par les Arabes, les Malgaches annonceront leur retrait du Tiewok en 2361. Le président français Messak exigera alors le retour du Tiewok à la France, mais les Arabes (devenus première puissance mondiale) s'y énorme de fluide énergétique

Entre-temps, l'Etat du Tiewok deviendra un gros producteur de fluide énergétique. Les membres de la famille Habbas seront tous multi-milliardaires: ils ouvriront de gros comptes dans les banques de Bagdad, de Damas, de Tananarive et de Dar es Salam; ils auront également de somptueux palais, de nombreuses concubines et dépenseront des fortunes énormes dans les casinos et les boîtes de nuit de Beyrouth, de Tananarive, d'Alexandrie et de

Par ailleurs, le vieux cardinal Iniemohk reuversera la royanté en Espagne en 2379 et annoncera son intention de rétablir le Saint-Empire. Il commencera à réinstaller des tribunaux d'inquisition et à pendre bon nombre d'infidèles. Le président français, Maddas, conscient du fait que la propagation du fondamentalisme catholique interdirait à toute l'Europe, pour longtemps, tout espoir de sontir de son sousdéveloppement, deviendra l'en-nemi déclaré du cardinal. En 2380. la confrontation entre l'Espagne du Cardinal et la France éclatera et conduira à une guerre sanglante, avivée par les Arabes et les Setsinois, guerre qui durera huit ans et ne se terminera qu'avec la mort du vieux Cardinal

Dès 2381, profitant de l'inattention de la France (toute absorbée par sa guerre contre l'Espagne), le Tiewok commencera subrepticement à exploiter (pour ment de notre ami astrologue. le compte des Arabes) un champ

commun à la France et au Tiewok. Après la fin de la guerre, la France se rendra compte du larcin perpétré par le Tiewok et demandera à être dédommagée. Mais le Tiewok, poussé par les Arabes, refusera effrontément de reconnaître le droit des Français, assurant que l'exploitation du champ a été effectuée à partir de son propre territoire.

Le 2 août 2390, date à laquelle une conjunction extraordinaire d'étolies et d'astres se produira. les troupes françaises occuperont le Tiewok. Fou de rage, le président arabe Hsub, songera d'abord à envoyer les troupes setsinoises pour infliger une correction bien méritée à la France. Mais devant le refus obstiné des Setsinois, effrayés par la déter-mination du président français Maddas et de son peuple, il finira par envoyer ses propres troupes en Italie et installera leur quartier général au Vatican, menaçant de détruire Paris et les autres villes françaises, à moins que la France ne se retire des Alpes-Maritimes et ne rétablisse le vieux prince Rebaj (de la famille Habbas naturellement) dans ses fonc-

Mais le président Maddas ne se laissera pas impressionner et décidera le retour définitif des Alpes-Maritimes à la France, malgré le fait que la plupart des pays de monde, y compris douze gouvernements européens, s'alligneront docilement derrière les puissants Arabes.»

Préfiguration d'une Europe unie

Le centre culturel français propose cette semaine et la semaine prochaine une série télévisée historique en quatre parties intitulée L'Europe de la toison d'or (1360-1530). Jendi 13 et samedi 15 les épisodes présentés sont Le défi bourguignon et Le grand duc d'Occident.

Cette série présente le double intérêt de nous faire découvrir une période méconnue de l'histoire de l'Europe et d'utiliser une technique de présentation qui fait merveilleusement le pout entre notre époque et celle de ces événements, par delà plus de quatre Epoque méconnue, la période de la toison d'or présente un intérêt particulier pour le spectateur d'anjourd'hui car elle préfigure d'une certaine manière l'union européenne dont on parle tant aujourd'hui et qui prend forme sous nos yeux. Alors que l'Europe venait d'être décimée par la Peste Noire et qu'elle allait entrer dans la guerre de Cent Ans, une sorte de miracle politique et culturel se produisit: par la volonté des Ducs de Bourgogne, un énorme territoire devint le haut lieu de la civilisation médiévale. Deux sensibilités -celle de la Bourgogne (latine) et celle des Flandres (nordique)- y fusionnèrent pour créer un véritable état de grâce, un royaume idéal qui fut, en fait, une ébanche de ce qu'aurait pu devenir l'Europe. Les Grands Ducs d'Occident (Philippe le Hardi, Jean sans Peur, Philippe le Bon, Charles le Téméraire), par le jeu des alliances matrimoniales, des conquêtes militaires et des héritages allaient réunir ces populations en un ensemble parfaitement cohérent pour en faire un foyer de culture dont le rayonnement devait s'étendre à l'Espagne, au Portugal, à l'Italie, à l'Empire germanique et à l'Autriche. L'Angleterre serait bien souvent une alliée directe, parfois un ennemi fraternel.

Pourtant les Grands Ducs n'étaient ni bourguignons, ni flamands, ni français: ils furent les trois en même temps. Et, en 1477, à la mort du Téméraire, si la Bourgogne proprement dite fut contrainte d'entrer dans le giron du royaume de France, l'esprit bourguignon se maintint, dans le nord, durant les règnes de Marie de Bourgogne, Maximilien d'Autriche, Philippe le Beau, jusqu'à L'Etat bourguignon est, de fait, un état supra-national. Il renonce tant qu'il peut aux contraintes de la féodalité. Il favorise les échanges aussi bien commerciaux qu'intellectuels et artistiques. Il s'efforce d'être un ferment de paix et de civilisation. L'ordre de la Toison d'or, créé par Philippe le Bon, malgré son apparent élitisme, n'est rien d'autre qu'une esquisse de parlement européen. La «seurte de communes marchandises» est, en fait, le premier marché commun.

A tort, le XVème siècle est toujours négligé. L'éclat de la Renaissance fait oublier qu'un siècle avant, d'étonnantes forces créatrices préparaient le regard nouveau que l'homme européen jeterait sur l'univers et sur lui même. Le propos de cette série est donc d'éclairer la fin de cette époque si improprement appelée «Moyen Age».

Pour ce faire, les auteurs de la série, Jean Antoine et Jean-Philippe Lecat, emploient une technique aussi originale qu'efficace. Le spectateur est pris en main de bout en bout par Jean-Philippe Lecat, ancien ministre, maître des requêtes au Conseil d'Etat et dijonais d'origine, qui évoque, sur un ton pertinent et clair cette époque lointaine. De chiteaux en églises il nous guide à travers les vestiges de cette grandeur passée. Sur sa voix, viennent se poser, de temps à autre, des images d'époque (les chefs d'œuvres picturaux qui ont traversé les siècles) ou des reconstitutions vivantes mais muettes de scènes d'autrefois (mariage, chasse, banquet, guerre, bal, rencontre amoureuse).

Mélant ainsi reconstitutions historiques, documents authentiges, cette série donne à ces temps loi un reflet à la fois véridique et attachant.

Les agents de recensement envoyés dans tout l'Empire du Milieu avaient pour mission d'établir les noms, le sexe et l'âge de tous les occupants de chaque foyer, en vue d'établir un fichier d'état-civil, selon des archives récemment déconvertes. Le 1er juillet dernier, près de 70 millions d'agents ont été mobilisés pour mettre les chiffres à jour. Les opérations de déponillement de ce dernier recensement en date des quelque 1,1 milliard de Chinois demanderont près de 18 mois.

Moscow mayor demands resignation of premier

MOSCOW (AP) - Moscow's radical mayor blamed the central government Friday for shortages of bread and cigarettes in the capital and joined the calls for Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov to resign, press reports said.

Ryzhkov said on Soviet television Friday night that the nation's economic problems were due in part to lax discipline by workers and disruptive strikes, and he said the government would take "severe measures" against those workers who disrupt discipline.

Moscow's bread shortage is attributable to increased demand by returning vacationers and students, as well as panic-buying, Ryzhkov said, apparently trying to steer the blame away from the government.

"The political clock has speeded up sharply," Ryzhkov said. "We are aware that the national economy is in a very serious situation and tensions are growing all the time."

Moscow mayor Gavrill Popov, at a session of the Russian Parliament, sharply denounced the Soviet government for trying to retain full control, over the country's economic life, TASS said. He called on Ryzhkov, and the rest of the council of ministers, or cabinet, to resign: Popov said pressure for Ryzhkov's resignation was growing across the country and a similar call would be made at the Soviet Parliament next week by a radical wing of legislators known as the inter-regional group, TASS reported.

Oil prices slip on profit-taking

NEW YORK (R) — Oil prices fell sharply Friday as traders swooped in for a round of profittaking, but the benchmark U.S. crude managed to close above $30 for a gain of more than $3 a barrel since last Friday.

West Texas Intermediate finished down $1.39 to $30.04 a barrel Friday for October delivcry. The contract fell below the psychological $30 a barrel level before rebounding.

Profit-taking before the weekend and rumours that Saddam Hussein had lost power, quickly discounted, were blamed for Friday's price drop. Nervous-ness about the month-old Middle East crisis was credited for the week-long price rally.

The drop stalled a weeklong rally in oil prices in which crude advanced $1.80 Tuesday, 65 cents Wednesday and $1.66 Thursday.

The crisis has lifted oil as high as $32 a barrel, while the day before Iraq invaded Kuwait, oil traded at about $21 a barrel. "The market is a barometer of emotions tied to what's going on in the Mideast," said Robert Baker, analyst at Prudential-

Bache Securities. A London-based analyst blamed the worldwide price fall on the unclear outlook in the Gulf. "The root of all this is uncertainty," said Mari Buglass of Shearson Lehman Hutton.

"When it comes to politics or military manoeuvres, the oil mar-ket is not in possession of all the facts — it's risk management without knowing all the risks," said Buglass.

Financial markets everywhere have been reeling on soaring oil prices after Iraqi President Sad-dam Hussein ordered his army to takeover neighbouring Kuwait

A prolonged stand-off between Iraqi forces and U.S. troops sent to defend Saudi Arabia would throw a double punch at Asian economies: Consistently expen-sive oil and dwindling export revenues, economists said.

Already declining stock and property markets in the region would be left tottering, they said. However, surging Asian stock markets, inflated by infusions of cash from strong export earnings, were due for a correction long before Iraqi tanks rolled into

Analysts said the Gulf crisis was a catalyst for declines in stock and property markets already hit by tightening credit. Asian governments tend to raise interest rates to control inflation rather than paring budgets. Tight credit undermines markets supported by buyers who borrow off assets to invest. Oil prices are raising the spec-

North-South talks, conducted intermittently since the 1950-53 Korean War, have broken down

Conductor sacked over patriotic songs

LONDON (R) — A top British conductor was sacked after threatening to refuse to play patriotic songs at one of the country's most popular concerts if the crisis in the Gulf worsened. Mark Elder. who was to conduct the "last night of the proms" at London's Albert Hall later this month, said in an interview it would be callous in the extreme to play pieces such as "Rule Britannia" and Land of Hope And Glory if Britain were engaged in combat in the Gulf. The British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) which is organising the Sept. 15 concert, removed Elder and assured fans that "the last night will be performed as advertised". The annual last night of the season of promenade concerts, with its traditional finale of patriotic songs and a wildly enthusiastic audience clad in Union Jack hats, is heard worldwide by millions of radio listeners.

1989 births in Japan lowest since war

TOKYO (AP) — The number of babies born in Japan in 1989 fell to a record low of 1,246,802, a drop of 67,204 from 1988, the Health and Welfare Ministry said. The previous low was 1.314,006 in 1988, said a ministry official, speaking on condition of anonymity. The ministry said that in 1989, the average Japanese woman had 1.57 children. The official said the average bridegroom was 28.5 years old in 1989, compared with 28.4 years old in 1988. The average bride was 25.8 years old, unchanged from 1988. He said in 1989 there were 708,316 marriages, or 600 more than in 1988, and 157,811 divorces, up 4,211 from the prior year. The Home Affairs Ministry, which reported Japan's population at 122.74 million as of the end of March, attributed recent low population growth the the increasing number of working women and the high cost of education.
